15-17. Soruları, parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

There are many different reasons for home-schooling. Some parents see better educational opportunities for their child in home-schooling. They think that they can better prepare their children for the life outside of school. Some children can also learn better at home. Home-schooling is also an option for families living in remote rural areas those temporarily abroad, those who travel frequently and therefore face the physical impossibility or difficulty of getting their children into school. Health reasons and special needs can also play a role in why children cannot attend a school regularly and are at least partially home-schooled.

- 15-) One point emphasized in the passage is that - - - - .
- A) home-schooling is compulsory for the life outside of school.
B) home-schooled children do better than the others.
C) Home-schoolers learn in a different way from children attending regular schools.
D) home-schooling provides a better chance for children to know the outer world.
E) The home-schooler may be uncomfortable mixing with other people in adult life.

- A) home-schooling is a considerable option for those having physical impossibilities
B) most children will continue to get their formal education at schools
C) majority of parents are not qualified enough to teach their children
D) teachers have the time and patience to teach their students at schools
E) all children must be educated

18-20. Soruları, parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

There are increasing numbers of people who, like myself, no longer want to eat meat, fish and poultry and are turning to a vegetarian diet. Certainly, we do not have to kill to feed ourselves. All the proteins, vitamins and minerals that we need in order to live and to be healthy are easily available in the endless variety of plant life, and in those gifts, animals give us painlessly, such as milk and eggs. People often ask me, puzzled, how vegetarians eat. Their puzzlement is real. They think of their own meals without the meat and think "how awful". In fact, their meals are pretty awful anyway: dull, unimaginative, boring. Even in 'good' cooking, variety is usually found only in the main course, usually meat or fish. Things like salads, vegetables and bread are of little importance and are the same every time. But, vegetarian cookery is rich and varied, full of many marvellous dishes with a character all their own.

18-) One point emphasized in the passage is that - - - .

- A) many people object to eating meat out of respect for sentient life.
- B) a vegan diet is one that consists only of plant-derived foods
- C) vegetarian cookery is dull and unimaginative
- D) eating a wide variety of colourful vegetables every day is essential for vegetarians.
- E) proteins have located in both animals and plants 19-) One of the main concerns of the author is to- - - .

- A) learn from people having farm animals
- B) blame people killing animals for their appetites
- C) describe how a great variety of vegetarian cookery
- D) show the importance of eating poultry
- E) to decrease vegetarianism

20-) Which of the following best describes the author's attitude toward vegetarianism?

- A) satirical
- B) impartial
- C) disappointed
- D) favouring
- E) disapproving
